NEWS FROM BEYOND THE PALE

ARMAGEDDON TERROR

AS NIBIRU APPROACHES

Harper Prorogues Christmas

The Prime Minister announced that it is his government's intention to prorogue Christmas this year. There were immediate outcry from opposition members who claim that he is only trying to sidestep the Nibiru issue. The Prime Minister remains resolved however, "This is just another instance of the rest of the world trying to hold us to ransom, just another instance of uncorroborated theories of climate change.

Canadian cannot be drawn into other nations' problems. We need a firm hand on the tiller to steer us through current economic turmoil. Who is to say that the Nibiruans will not want to buy our Canadian oil? We are open for business and will deal with these problems when they arise. In the meantime our government has taken the prudent step of proroguing Christmas until all this settles down.

Around the world Christmas will be cancelled this year except in the little village of Pic de Bugarach in the French Pyrenees which is expected to survive the Aztec Armageddon scheduled for December 21st.

In this picturesque village the extraterrestrials that have long harboured in the adjacent mountain will emerge to rescue all inhabitants and transport them to the Planet Zardar in their spaceship. The Mayan/Aztec calendar stone explains that the rogue Asteroid Nibiru is at this very moment hurtling toward earth to exterminate us all. Though scientists at Nasa have not been able to detect its approach, learned eschatologists expert in decipherment of the Calendar stone explain that this is because we are dealing with invisible Dark Energy which has only become familiar to the European mind in recent years. The Aztecs however have proven to be much more prescient than previously imagined.

The Mayor of Pic, Marie-Hippolyte de la Tronche-Bobine explains, "Pardonne me de garbage eenglish but deese Aztec zey oh so progress-eeve dat dey see de Armaged and iversity of Haut Pic is constructing a roll call list for the orderly evacuation to hospitable AlMaksuur in the MMXII galaxy.

The Fracking craze has answered the prayers of America's oil elite and derailed the prospects of those wedded to the idea of all those expensive alternative energies which have been so slow to prove themselves and tend to look ugly. It is envisioned tha America will achieve total oil self-sufficiency by 2020 and be in a position to sell some of the surplus back to the Middle East.

Many local Odessians are already removing their FIT Photo-voltaic Panels and turning to the new technology throwing their fields open to drilling exploration crews. ODOICO's president J.R Ewing II maintains that outdated alternative energy sources do not dit comfortably with the explosive new growth in the energy harvest. "They tend to get kinda busted."

A debate held in the recently re-named ODOICO Arena brought together the highest levels of fracking expertise from arond the globe to discuss the process and list the advantages that it will ultimately bestow upon the local community. Dr Horace Witherworry of the Institute of Fracking Studies in Austin Texas explained the science behind the innovative technology. "We just go in there 'n bust up the ODOICO's Ted Wallis enthused "Fracking imprints a poetry on the landscape like some of the best golf courses that I have played"

Mud Lake to be transformed into a playground for the rich and famous with water just like the Caribbean subsurface into mighty big chunks and that liberates the gas through these big fissures you kinda see. Then we just pump a whole load of these ole chemicals mixed with guar bean paste harvested from environmentally responsible farmers in India and add what we like to call a 'slurry slew' o' water and kinda displace the gas we're after. This'll be picked up in rovin' tumbler juggernauts and shipped via pipeline to Louisiana. At the end of the hole process we restore the landscape to its pristine-like natural state. Cain't tell the difference I say. We put a lot of money into them land reclaim processes at the end.

In fact many of the sites are so cleaned up that they make a good golf course, or challenge tracks for dirt biking. Its like awesome!"

Nigen Nimbleman, representing the Odessa Cyclists for a Fracking Free

Environment, (OCFFE)broached some of his members concerns about residual crevasses which tended to swallow cyclists in these new Dirt Bike rally zones. However other members presented a divided opinion that the residual ground movements added to the excitement of their sport.

Aspie Ispier, the Chairman of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce outlined aspirations to attract a large hotel or casino to take advantage of the Carribbean style waters residual in the holding tanks that were once Mud Lake. "The colours are just fab, and I am told that its like the Dead sea, the waters are so dense that you just float around like corks on the surface. It would be a great place to bring the kids, no problem with lifeguards or supervision. I buy it! I see only an upside to this whole enterprise."

Odessa Twinned With Abergavenny

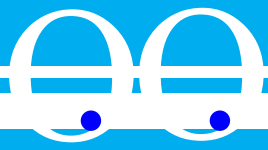

The Odessa Chamber of Commerce has announced that Odessa is to be twinned with the historic town of Abergavenny in Wales. Abergavenny with its long and illustrious history was once a Roman Town, and is now feted as 'the Gateway to Wales'. Odessa though it never succumbed to Roman occupation is nevertheless feted as the gateway to Napanee. The two towns have agreed to exchange cultural icons and a Tim Hortons Fine Dining outlet is currently being shipped over intact. Aside from various black princes Wales is noted for culinary specialties like Welsh Rabbit, a glorious concoction of rabbit, cheese and more cheese all cooked to a golden brown. Odessa is already looking forward to the opening of the Welsh Rabbit tea-rooms in Mud Street later in 2013..

Kim Adoration Centre

The online version of China's Communist party newspaper has hailed a report by The Oracle naming North Korean dictator Kim Jong-un as the sexiest man alive.

The People's Daily ran a 55-page photo spread on its website in a tribute to the leader, under the headline 'North Korea's top leader named The Oracle's Sexiest Man Alive for 2012'.

Quoting the Oracle's report, the Chinese newspaper wrote: "With his devastatingly handsome, round face, his boyish charm and his sturdy frame, this Pyongyang-bred heartthrob is every woman's dream come true."

The People's Daily cited the Oracle as saying: "Blessed with an air of power that masks an unmistakable cute, cuddly side, Kim made this newspaper's editorial board swoon waving towards a departing military parade, Kim wearing sunglasses and smiling quixotically, and touring a nuclear facility with his wife and Micky Mouse.

It is not the first time a state-run newspaper has fallen for a fictional report by The Oracle. In 2002, the Beijing Evening News, one of the capital city's biggest tabloids at the time, published as news the fictional account that the US Congress wanted a new building and that it might leave behind the corruption of Washington in favour of Pyongyang. The Oracle is intending to segue this international coverage by declaring Odessa a 'Kim Adoration Centre'. A full scale tribute along the lines of the Hollywood sign will be erected on an imposing artificial mound intended to tower over the Odessa Roundabout.

Battle of the Bards

The Grand Druid of Abergavenny, Owain M'rgana Glendwyr has challenged our local mayor Edsel Furd to a Battle of the Bards in the upcoming Odessa Eisteddfod. Furd is confident that our local talent will prevail. "This guy is more than just verbally challenged. He's long on style but short on content. I've had a 45 year career in security services, manning many a night desk. I know what life can be like on the battlefield. I have been trained for every eventuality. I can safely say that I've seen it all and've got a bead on the inside scoop. Talk about low-tech, this guy should get a subscription to Soldier of War magazine. He looks like something you'd see at an Orc fest. I reckon he'll be a pushover!" The Odessa Eisteddfod – The Battle of the Bards - will be held at Shell Lube on the summer solstice 2013.

Odessa Knitting Society 'O-KAY' breaks new ground at their Annual Knit-athlon

Every year the Odessa Recreational Knitting Circle exhibits the extraordinary products of their imaginations in a massive exhibition that is held in the reception area of Millhaven Correctional. This year some of the biggest names in local knitting have produced award winning work.

Tina Bee, a long term resident of one of our local institutions has provided ample demonstration of her remarkable talents with a line of bank hold-up masks knitted from human hair.

Colour Aversion Support Group

Oh! for the days when allergies were focused on simple ragweed and golden rod! Then we discovered the dastardly peanut which has resulted in the comprehensive ban on peanut imports into the Odessa area! Now however Doctors have identified a new and insidious allergy, an aversion to colour!

Dr Dimbolo Farbenfarb has conducted extensive tests on a study group of 5,417 people between the ages of 4 and 97 and has identified an alarming new emergent sensitivity to colour.

"I have discovered that an increasing number of people have become violently antipathetic to the red and orange portions of the light spectrum. Many will experience extreme reaction leading to anaphylactic shock as a result of mere minutes of exposure."

"Nor is wearing dark glasses a convenient recourse for such afflicted people, however cool they look. Due to the mysteries of 'blindsight' even unsighted people are able to identify the presence of the red/orange frequencies. This can occur even when lighting is subdued."

"This phenomenon is just the opposite of colour blindness, which renders the world a dull muted palette of greys."

Dr Farbenfarb is leading a campaign to control the unlicensed use of colour in the Kingston area. "We want to create a control zone so that the benefits of colour rationing can be studied in detail."

"Our world is full of offensive overly colourful objects. We are proposing that colours should be applied more judiciously in all products and in the built environment. Why do we need red bar siding or glossy red toasters? Santa Claus himself is an outrage to the colour supersensitive! We are proposing that Odessa become a colour free environment where the use of such colours is strictly controlled and licensed."

Dear Aggie

a weekly syndicated column with Agnus O'Nant B.Psych, MPD, mem. SICCO

Dear Aggie,

I have been avidly reading my E.L.James and now look at the world entirely through her 50 Shades of Grey perspective.

Like Anastasia, I too am an irrepressibly naive and enigmatically beautiful soul. I too want to download all that dreary baggage of twentieth century feminism in favour of the bound and whipped odalisque that lies within.

However the pickings are slim in the Odessa area. I have not found a single rich young entrepreneur that even remotely resembles Grey. The Gene-Genie has turned up a tattoo artist named Mo, but he has a rather different take on the 50 shades of grey concept. And he is most certainly not a wealthy young entrepreneur with a compulsion to confront the demons of a tortured past. He's more into his own torturing present. Furthermore at times he is only too able to resist my enigmatic beauty and has tended to use me as a palimpsest for experimenting with his cockamamie designs.

In some desperation I have considered rehabilitating my husband of 47 years, Clemmy, and have tried to introduce him to the E.L. James oeuvre. Clemmy is already hopelessly defective as a tormented genius and simply cannot figure out the knots. He is also rather hopeless at undoing them afterwards when required. Nevertheless I fear that his response has been rather overboard and possibly counter-productive. He has stated that he too wants to be shocked and appalled by the demands of a tormented soul like Grey and is therefore planning to undergo gender reassignment. I fear that E.L.J may have unleashed a whirlwind and I am inclined to try and refocus on Mo, even though he is clearly a few fries short of a Happy Meal.

What do you suggest?

Yours Sincerely,

Anastasia

Dear Anastasia,

For all the right reasons, you wish to rekindle the long departed inner spark of youth. People are multifaceted and there is an important part of you that you may be currently undervaluing. Your dreams and fantasies reveal a longing to reconnect with your subliminal side. You might find it helpful to read Carl Jung's notions about balancing the "mother", "amazon" and "courtesan" within, or possibly not. Consider setting up a role-playing date with Clemmy in which you meet in the bar of a hotel and pretend to be strangers on the pick up; he could experiment with his gender re-assignment aspirations. Such games will often give couples permission to act in uncustomary ways and may add that missing frisson of danger to your relationship. Perhaps invite Mo along as well to liven up the evening, and bring lost of rope.

I also recommend you take a class to physically release your sensual inner-self – for example salsa or Brazilian dancing, such as lambazouk or 'samba for the over sixties', as I assume you must be.

As for Clemmy, perhaps you could both collaborate and write the next E.L.James blockbuster.

Yours Solicitously,

Aggie

I have just discovered the perfect E.L.James shoe. It seems to capture the essence of her world view. (available at Wallowing In a Cloud!)

Hockey Violence Training Camp

Enrolment for Odessa Hockey Violence Training Camp is underway at ShellLube to select candidates keen to crest on the current wave of hockey violence. Candidates for try outs must prove both themselves and their parents in a gruelling slugathon which will separate the star seeds from the pulp. Coach Vlad Hulkmeister explains "Many parents are particularly drawn to our camp facilities because we offer an in-house brain surgery clinic to address personality disorders resulting from repeated bashing of the head with hockey sticks." Minnie-Me Hulkmeister who is emerging as potential major league material explains, "Most of the kids also appreciate the opportunity to channel their parents' aggressions away from themselves and onto each other. This results in spectacular rink side confrontations that out rate anything that takes place on ice. Our kids keep calling out for more."

World Famed Landmark Relocated to the Highway for Heroes

The now famous world pilgrimage site, the Luo Baogen house in the Chinese City of Wenling is being dismantled and packaged as a kit of parts for reassembly at Exit 196 of the Highway for Heroes.

The concept of such an attraction has been carefully co-ordinated by the Ministry of Transport with the provision of a Driverless Highway High Speed link between Odessa and Kingston.

The gift has been arranged through the generosity of Cash Ching Province (formerly Alberta) as a spur to Canadian growth and as a strong demonstration that in their view all roads do no lead to Ottawa.

"As a tourist destination that has all the makings of a cracker, high image awareness, good access, a strong focus event that most people will be able to grasp coupled with superb parking opportunities. The ground floor is a potential godsend as a gift shop."

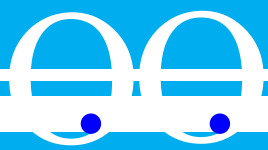

Initially the upper floors will be occupied by the Luo Baogen family who have been given instant visa clearance to resettle in Canada and as far away from Wenling as possible.

Zombie World

New Lease of Life for the Kingston Pen

After a startling success of Zombie World Day across the western world MiraZomb, the organisers, have been looking for a permanent headquarters to manage future events. MiraZomb Enterprises, a company currently based in the Cayman Islands, has been looking at the disused Kingston Penitentiary as a suitable home for a permanent Zombie World community and Theme park.

Last July avid Zombie enthusiasts took to the streets of London, Paris, New York, caked in dry blood and ravaged clothing. With their suppurating flesh and missing limbs they proved almost indistinguishable from the rest of the population.

SIVAM LICEC

Knitting Entrepreneur Sivam Licec is a major inspiration among Odessa's knitting enthusiasts. She maintains that it takes a lot of brain power to knit. A very unique and well-developed 3 dimensional spatial awareness is required. Her ever-popular series of Brain Cosies have become popular Christmas gifts in recent years.

"I like to work with naturally dyes and tend to favour grey matter. Some of my patterns will be a challenge for any but the most expert tricotophiles," she admits demurely. "However I think that challenge is what knitting is all about - let alone the challenge of wearing one of my Brainwave Hats.

PILOT SCHEME

Driverless Cars to be Deployed on Hwy #2

The state of California has passed legislation to accommodate driverless cars on its highways so that drivers can dedicate their minds to focus on other more engaging activities, Texting, Twittering and porn.

The new cars however present a significant challenge to the seminal American macho dream of the open road.

However the major oil companies, including the Big Four, are solidly behind this progressive development. Larry B. Graft III, a spokesman for Eagle Oil explains their position. "We are as keen as anyone to cut the carnage on our roads. Mayhem is never good for our kind of business. But as soon as you start to deal with human beings then you get human error. In an ideal world most of these journeys would take place in the absense of human beings entirely."

Odessa Township has entered a pilot scheme to create a driverless car corridor along the Loyalist Highway. Driverless vehicles will effectively cut travelling times by up to 86%. The traffic will be engineered to be despatched in convoys which are sent out at 15 minute intervals from both directions. The convoys are expected to travel at speeds averaging 177 m.p.h.

Passengers would be able to effortlessly book their driverless vehicles on the internet and they would convey them from their doorstep to destination.

An automated driverless system will effectively eliminate driver error, such as driving in the wrong direction around the Odessa roundabout.

Frump questions PM's legitimacy

Donald Frump has surfaced to ask embarrassing questions about the ancestry of Stephen Harper. The animosity apparently stems from derogatory remarks made by the PM about the lavish appointments within the Frump Tower in Toronto. Frump challenges Harper to prove that he is a true Canadian and entitled to have an opinion about architecture. "God knows what the 'J' in his middle name is intended to stand for. My researchers have uncovered revealing documents that suggest that a certain Selim Jihad Harpi'ir was born to Abdul bin Kalb al Maksur in Sanaa in the Yemen in June 1959. Coincidence eh? This is a city that has produced some of the most deadly terrorists to have walked the modern planet.

As yet Mr Harper has been unable to respond to my simple demand for a clarification or to conclusively prove that the person in question is not indeed him." Relations between the two men have further soured since the Prime Minister refused to accommodate the Frump proposals for a luxury golf course on the banks of the Rideau.

"I am only inviting this so-called Selim Jihad Harpi'ir to show a copy of his birth certificate and transcripts of all his educational attendances, if any, as well as licences, passports, primary school report cards and permits dating back to the year in question. If he is able to do this by 8:00 am on Christmas Day, 2012 I will accept that he is probably a different Selim Jihad Harpi'ir and will gladly make a generous donation of $50,000 to any charity of his choice. But I want to see everything. The deadline is binding."

Puppy Well Being Centres

Following the success of the puppy rooms installed at Dalhousie University to deal with their stressed out students, Puppy Well-Being centres are springing up across Canada. In these days of recession and austerity Puppytherapy has proven an ideal way to counter suicidal tendencies in over stressed modern populations.

"However laying on rooms full of puppies can be a logistics nightmare" explains senior puppytherapist Dr Engel Phreek. "At Puppy Kingdom, thanks to the wonders of cloning we are able to achieve maximum cuteness and a total uniformity of the product. There are of course nature's little problems to be addressed and we have found that rooms full of upwards of 1000 puppies can induce nervous breakdown in the poopies-coop staff. But we are looking at ways of genetically modifying our operatives to achieve a much more self-contained product definition that is unadulterated delight and can be pumped up with energising nutriment prior to performance and then drained at the end of the day.

"Many puppytherapy centres suffer from image problems when they are obliged to release packs of ravening, post-cute adolescents into the world. But it is not part of the modern puppytherapy feel good ethos to exterminate the puppies when they reach this no longer cute age. At Puppy

Kingdom we ensure that all of our operatives go to happy adoption centres run to Humane Society standards, where they

into happy homes."

Entering Puppy Kingdom is a bliss packed experience. A kind, nurse-like woman in a tabard directs you to the puppy room (it's up there next to the soft furnishings and the baby-changing). Puppies, whimpering and needy, totter over to you, as you sit, weeping, on a beanbag. You stroke their tiny velvet ears between your fingers, your shoulders drop, your jaw unclenches, the world comes into focus. Bingo and Rex have solved your dilemma with their neck folds, their unfocused eyes, the pink pads on their feet and their puppy smell. The unearned love that they bestow upon you makes you feel, briefly – perhaps wrongly – like a decent human being.

Grow Your Own Shmeat!

EXCUSE ME, is that a SHMEAT sandwich
you are eating?

Now you too can grow your own meat at home. Shmeat is destined to revolutionise the family farm. Gone are the days of having to deal with ornery animals which have to be fed and coddled and the exasperationn of waiting for the day that they finally bulk up and be sent off to Happy Valley with accusing looks in theri eyes.

In vitro meat is created by taking stem cells from the tastiest bits of your Ambulent Animate Protein (AAP's) and arraying them on a matrix and which is bathed in collagen where they are induced to divide at an accelerating rate. The product can be enhanced to produce high protein well-balanced nutrition that can be formed and textured to resemble any choice cut. There will be no mess of disposing with the bits that you do not like the look or taste of.

NASA scientists first developed Shmeat for space farming. But at $30,000 an ounce it proved beyond the budget of the ordinary housewife.

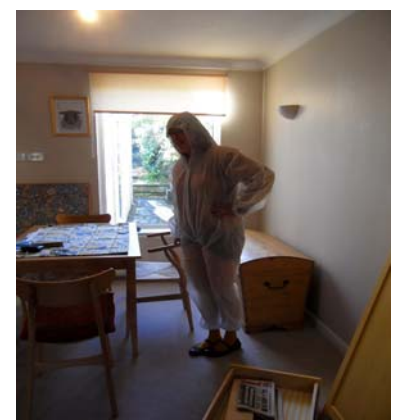

Schmeat can be further enhanced to eliminate degradation over extended space exploration with built in resistance to bacteria and destructive enzymes. Basically it lasts forever, no need to clutter up you refrigerator!

Scientists still have to make the product profitable for corporations in order for them to take this emerging technology to heart. A well designed industrial process, will make in vitro cheaper than conventional meat. Assuming that the proper materials are used and conditions remain ideal, two months of in vitro meat production could deliver up to 50,000 tons of meat from a mere ten pork muscle cells.

As Winton Churchill predicted in 1930's "Fifty years hence, we shall escape the absurdity of growing a whole chicken in order to eat the breast or wing, by growing these parts separately under a suitable medium." Perhaps Winston was a little too optimistic, but now shmeat is becoming a reality and something that we can look forward to on our supermarket shelves.

Shmeat production will stop the shame. Forty billion animals are slaughtered each year in North America alone. Shmeat produces a cruelty free product.

Odessa's farmers and housewives are clamouring to leap upon this painless gain bandwagon.

The Austerity Housewife Inspired use of Fridge Leftovers

Soupçon Soup:

Improvising is the worst!
Important to assemble first
Pots and pans and colanders
Polish and test drive the blenders.

A cauliflower first you'll need
To be parboiled in aniseed
Pulverise this with due care
Before you toss in juggéd hare.

Then add a cup of well diced borage
Which always lends the palate courage.

Carefully peel the poppy seed
(a lengthy process all agreed)

Take some cress, a hearty bunch
And blend with peach pits to add crunch
This clarify atop a candle
While some baby figs you dandle.

Add sautéed clump of hearty leeks
And douse in yogurt from the Greeks
Two dozen seeds of cardamom
Toasted to a crisp well done.

Add dollops of sharp Caerphilly
(Including wrapper if you're silly)
And don't forget a pot of mustard
Botritus figs, all closely clustered

Now slice and dice a rock hard tun
Add flambéed toadstools just for fun
Sawdust though deemed poor humectant
Will challenge tastes of o'er expectant.

Dump all this in giant pot
Then with firm wrist just whisk the lot
Until it forms consistent peaks
At crucial point, toss in the leeks

Then with flourish of a master chef
Serve Soupçon Soup -

My Favorite Welsh Rabbit Recipe:

Chef's Note:

Welsh Rabbits are now a rare and endangered species due to their having proven so tasty in this, the National Dish of Wales. Known to locals as 'Cymru Dfydillopsidimaruetcrumphorn' it is the favorite repast at every Eisteddfod. There are various recipes for this tasty dish but all are agreed that you must start with a large and compliant Welsh rabbit and place this in a dish together with 2 1/2 yards of ale, mustard, ground cayenne pepper or ground paprika and Worcestershire sauce. It should be noted that having drunk the ale the rabbit may become slightly less compliant and the prudent Welsh housewife often resorts to binding it hand and foot before introducing the ale. A delicious sauce may also be made by blending cheese and mustard into a rich paste with pulverised leeks. Some recipes for Welsh rarebit have become textbook savoury dishes listed by culinary authorities including Escoffier, Saulnier and Stouffers, who tend to use the archaic form Welsh 'rarebit'.

Thinspiration

The Anorexics Cooking School:

I will always cherish the memory of Mrs Dillip's Ox Tongue Stew. She left me the recipe in her will. This was comfort food at its most timeless - in fact the stew would last well into the new year.

You will need:

- 5 ox tongues, par boiled and skinned
- 14 lbs of pig suet
- one peck of potatoes
- a 5cm serrated pastry cutter
- an electric iron

Place the above in a commodious pot and plug in the iron. Leave overnight. You will awake to an indescribable aromas wafting through the air on Christmas morn.

The Queens Diamond Jubilee has been a great moment of celebration for Odessians as well as monarchists around the world.

Sitting is Bad for You

This dire news will send a chill down many a semi-supine spine: SITTING IS BAD FOR YOU! Recent studies conducted by the Institute for Sedentary Studies have conclusively proven that every hour spent in a sitting position will shorten life expectancy by up to 22 minutes. The study has been undertaken by strapping lab mice to tiny chairs and meticulously calculating their reduced life expectancy tables. Dr Alfonso de Rigger explains. "We have found that this phenomenon is a factor of brain function in controlling the circulation. The functions of the brain that control non sitting activities begin to senesce and necrotise rapidly. Our experts initially observed that those engaged in adrenaline fuelled sports were less likely to expire than people who are sitting around doing nothing all day or worse still are recumbent in beds." "I like to call it the Rasputin Phenomenon; a person fuelled by an adrenaline rush is almost unstoppable. We see it in our every-ping a variety of creatures into prone positions and monitoring the fall off of life expectancy. "Beds are killers. Almost 90% of the population is proven to die in a recumbent position. I figure that the stats will come in at close to 2 hours lost for every hour recumbent. It is surprising that we have any life expectancy left at all with our modern lifestyles." Many people who have now digested this study have leapt from their chairs keen to restore the 1/3 of life that they feel should be naturally theirs. Offices have been taansformed by itinerant staff circulating healthily throughout the day. Social networking equipment and sites are enjoying an unprecedented use. People are offering those killer seats on buses and metros with alacrity crowding into the aisles. This is possibly one of the reasons behind the inexplicable sudden upsurge in popularity of Stand-Up. Even 'being stood up' has taken on positive connotations. Dr de Rigger suggests introducing more adrenaline fuelled behaviour into the home. "Obviously it is not practical to have a bucking bronco in you living room unless you live in the boondocks or have very understanding neighbours. It would also be counter productive to effective social networking. But any one could invest in a small nest of Kallimantian Projectile Vipers. These little blighters are irascible and excessively antisocial and will find intriguing hiding places around the home leaping out from curtain folds or under kitchen pots and keeping you on your toes at all times. They only come together briefly for mating (every 2 weeks). A home that harbours such pets will be full of raw, finger tip tingling adrenalin. Sitting pretty will not be an option."

Stonehenge Touring the World

Some maintain that it is the work of nostalgic extra-terrestrials who brought these massive stones to Earth all the way from the planet Zardar, others argue that it was the work of the lost inhabitants of Atlantis, however, whatever your position, few dispute that this work of supreme art is over 65 million years old and may even predate the great Permian extinction which occurred 300 million years ago. Now this preaternaturally splendid work of art will be touring the world and local Odessians will be delighted to learn that they are on the itinerary.

The druids are reputed to have had a great sense of fun and liked to bounce around a lot bringing great cheer to all their sacrificial nominees. They originated many of our favorite Christmas customs like flaming plum pudding and missletoe - not to mentions all of the carols This great monument Stonehenge will be air lifted to Odessa for the Summer Solstice celebrations in 2013. A delegation of Welsh Druids is expected to attend and officiate at the solstice celebrations and sacrificial tribute. The closing ceremony promises to be something to behold, 'the ultimate once in a lifetime experience' for many people according to seasoned Druids.

Local volunteers are sought who will be available to participate on the day.

In anticipation of the event Druid costume making advice will be available every Tuesday night running up to the festivity at Odessa Secondary at 7 o'clock sharp. Please bring your own sheets.

Capricorn 21 December-18 January, 18) This year will be yours to flower whether you're a desert cactus or exotic orchid, it will be all the more spectacular if you supplement your diet with BabyBio.

Aquarius 19 January - 17 February The world is your oyster so make the most of it (unless you are a vegetarian or have a shell fish allergy) But hold back on giving your talents full rein in the 'R' months. Sterp into fame's spotlight.

Pisces 18 February - 19 March Don't give in and subscribe to the current fashion for self-imposed misery. Leave that to others. Now's the time to buy a one-way ticket to Pic in France and get away from it all. Niburu is 90% water - ideal for Pisces.

Aries 20 March - 18 April Think of how dreadfully things would have turned out if some of your past wishes had been granted. Keep your inner genie firmly bottled and 2012 should turn out to be a spectacular year.

Taurus 19 April - 19 May Opportunities await in Novo-Sibirsk! Are you ready to write the biography of Pussy Riot? (Read the fine print) This year you should laugh all the way to the bank.

Gemini 20 May - 20 June If it ain't broke then don't fix it. Keep it simple, no point in being bi-polar about everything. The best place to hid your talents is under fame's spotlight.

Cancer 21 June - 21 July 1. Snap shots are often misleading and there is no such thing as a smart cam. Monitor trends and don't go by random snaps of life.

Leo 22 July - 22 August You need to take life as it comes. Concentrate on the small things like the hole at the centre of your donut. The big picture will take care of itself in a truly splendid year.

Virgo 23 August - 21 September You are looking into the distance in search of something that is already on your doorstep. The spirit world suggests (for reasons not altogether clear) that you should join the Most Worshipful Guild of Toastmasters.

Libra 22 September - 22 October Remember that people who have all the answers rarely ask any questions. Self-confidence will only take you so far. It is your call to weigh up the pros and cons and decide how far that is.

Scorpio 23 October - 21 November. The roving spirit of a Khazak Kulak waif is trying to make contact from the spirit beyond with suggestions for a lucrative investment opportunity.

Sagittarius 22 Nov. - 20 December What with Niburu, this is the year to rein in some of your dreams. Running off to join the Cirque du Soleil will only end in heartbrake. Your dreams will find you when they are ready.

Festival of Political Correctitudinousness

You do the sums – only 2 out of 5 of the world's population is a practicing Christian, Muslim or Jew. Believe it or Not 45% of the world population do not recognise Santa Clause as a biblical figure. We have got to face these new realities. Odessa Township Council has voted in favour of restyling the winter break as the 'Festival of the Elves and Snowflakes'. "It is fresh, topical, and uncompromisingly vapid!" enthuses spokesperson Cue Blanck. "We are soliciting voluntary assistance on translation of the new festival brochure into the 97 recognised local languages so that it will be accessible to our extended community."

INVITRO New Gourmet Opportunity Scheduled to Open early January

Incognito Diner at the new restaurant

Novelty foods are becoming a major draw for the flagging restaurant trade. But long gone are the days when all that was on offer was a choice of donut.

A new restaurant, INVITRO has opened on the Loyalist Highway near Odessa, to the delight of local inhabitants. Glow in the dark cuts from genetically modified animals are a big draw as well as delectable Shmeat dishes. In-Vitro Meat can be fashioned from any creature, not just domestic animals or the humdrum creatures you find knocking about the farm.

Yes, ANY ANIMAL, even rare beasts like snow leopard, or Komodo Dragon. You will want to sample them all. Nutritional experts believe we will also be able to create IVM using the DNA of extinct beasts - obviously, "Di-

Glow in the Dark Alpaca produce startling novelty cuisine noBurgers" will be served at every six-year-old boy's birthday party.

Humans are animals, so every hipster can try Cannibalism. Imagine the satisfaction of chomping through people that you don't like very much. Or imagine passionate lovers literally eating each other, growing sausages from their co-mingled tissues overnight in tabletop appliances similar to bread-making machines. Proprietor, Lucy explains, "We like to think that we are offering almost the reverse of the traditional takeout service. This is a take in service. Heh Heh! You just send in testubes of your favorite

DNA and we will transform it into a hearty meal to order. Of course wait times will be somewhat extended and diners may want to send in their orders a few weeks in advance. Only a few cells are necessary to start a culture. Some of our entrees like the Glow in the Dark Alpaca steaks are patented in house specialties you won't find nowhere else.

Smart Drugs - Today a Necessity

The OPP and local Odessa police have announced that they are preparing to issue Smart Drugs to all operatives to counter the upsurge in intelligent crime. Increasingly available over the counter smart drugs have become available recently throughout the Kingston area. Commissioner Cyril Drednot explains in an open letter to all Odessa residents. "There is a criminal class out there that is getting far too smart for its own good. White collar crime is rocketing because today's criminal can just sit back in the comfort of his own home and think. Behind the scene he's no longer out there in the public eye and doesn't even need to change out of his pyjamas for a days grift. Gone are six shooters and black Stetson hats and the fashion statements of yesteryear. The police are at a severe disadvantage tooling the streets in their cruisers, because all the hardened criminals are back at home thinking of things, cresting on the latest intelligence enhancers."

Though Modalfinitum is readily available, pharmacists are asked to be on the lookout for people who approach them asking for extra strength prescriptions. Dr Plodini explains, "Pharmafarm's products must be used responsibly. A lot of today's criminals are getting too smart for anyone's good. They are leaving the general population and the police far behind."

After a series of clinical trials conducted on the Canadian armed Forces Modalfinitum was proven to raise the IQ's of service personnel by up to 120 points. Subsequent trials by CorreCan in the major correctional facilities in the Kingston area have produced similar results. Smart drugs have been used extensively in US troop deployments in Afghanistan where intelligence is considered a plus factor in winning the hearts and minds of the local populations. Tours of duty can enjoy massive economies when personnel can be deployed 24/7 and remain hyper-vigilant throughout extended tours of duty.

Resort to these smart drugs in the Canadian penal system has been proven to cut the sentences of lifers back to a few months. The UCPoW or the wardens' union has stated that smart drugs were proving so successful that there was little left to be corrected in their clients, they were proving to be fully engaged at all times.

"These guys are getting smarter at finding ways to get out of restraint. Our corrective clients are now correcting their teachers and wardens at every turn, a situation that cannot be tolerated."
